ABSTRACT

Data on salaries of medical school faculty during 1977-78 are presented in tabular form with a brief narrative analysis. It is the thirteenth regular annual salary review. Salary and earnings data are included for 108 U.S. medical schools and cover 23,530 filled full-time faculty positions. Some of the variables by which the data tables are arranged are: basic v. clinical sciences; geographic region; public v. private colleges; type of degree held; and institutional fixed salary v. total faculty compensation. SUMMARY

Since the AAMC began collecting faculty salary data on a regular basis nearly two decades ago, a concerted effort has been made to gather and report information on total salary and earnings compensation. Until the early 1960's, the data was collected sporadically and no distinction was made between strict full-time (SFT) and geographic full-time (GFT) appointments. The predominant pattern across the country for clinical faculty was the SFT salary arrangement as traditionally defined by the AAMC (p.7). As the need arose for medical schools to supplement regular institutional faculty salary funds with practice income in order to attract and retain quality clinical faculty, the GFT pattern became more dominant. The AAMC Salary Survey subsequently attempted to reflect complete compensation for both SFT and GFT designations (as indicated by the schools using AAMC definitions).

The 1977-78 Survey has been changed significantly as a result of several pilot studies and extensive dialogue with medical school personnel. This change was prompted by the fact that the conventional definitions of strict and geographic full-time, which the AAMC has tried to maintain, infrequently conform exactly to institutional practice. Many variations and hybrid appointment designations have developed unique to individual institutions. In the current survey, the schools were asked to report designations used by them regardless of whether they conformed to the AAMC definitions. The data in this report reflect that request; however, an analysis has been included of salary data which conform to the Association's terminology.

More significantly, however, has been the concern that total compensation (salary and outside earnings) is unaccounted for. Because of this uneasiness, the data collection instrument's major focus is on the individual salary components as they are combined to reflect total compensation. These components are defined on page seven.

The participating institutions were asked to account for every compensation component by using one of the three following designations on each data line where actual dollars could not be reported:

"DNA" - DOES NOT APPLY (Compensation component is not applicable)

"NI" - NO INFORMATION (Compensation component is applicable but amount is unknown and cannot be estimated)

"0" - Zero dollars (Compensation component is applicable, but no dollars are reportable this year).

With the exception of SFT Basic Science Faculty, any faculty position (SFT or GFT) was disqualified as a total compensation reporter, if an "NI" appeared in any one of the component columns. After reviewing the data, it was decided to accept SFT Basic Science Faculty as complete reporters, even if an "NI" appeared in supplementary income.

The 1977-78 Report on Medical School Faculty Salaries is the thirteenth regular annual faculty compensation review. Salary and earnings data are presented for 108 U.S. medical schools and cover 23,530 filled full-time faculty positions compared to 26,554 in 1976-77. This decrease may be attributable to the more rigorous elimination of incompletely reported salaries, as described above. The participating schools reported complete data for 18,038 faculty they designated as SFT and 5,492 faculty they designated as GFT. The respective totals for 1976-77, where the schools were requested to use AAMC definitions, were 20,461 and 6,093, after elimination of incompletely reported salaries. In 1977-78, 53 percent of the GFT faculty salary entries reflect total compensation compared to 55 percent the previous year.

The first section of this report reflects salary information for all schools for positions filled by faculty without regard to degree held. The matrices used throughout this and subsequent sections are consistent in format and include salary averages and percentile statistics by rank and by department. Instructions on the interpretation of the matrix cells are found on page eleven. Caution should be used in interpreting the data in any cell when the "number" of positions is small, since individual variation can greatly affect small group statistics.

The first tables are for strict full-time faculty in the basic science and clinical departments, followed by similar breakdowns for geographic full-time faculty. Again, it should be stressed that these designations are those used by the schools without necessarily adhering to AAMC definitions. Further, the data for both SFT and GFT employment categories reflect total salary and earnings compensation; faculty responses which evidenced incomplete total compensation were excluded from these tables and from those in Sections II, III, IV and V which follow. It is not possible with the information at hand to detect shifts from one employment category to the other.

Faculty in departments of pharmacology continue to be the more highly salaried among the basic science departments. This appears to reflect the relative predominance of faculty with the M.D. degree. Anatomy faculty in general are among the lower salaried basic science faculty. More than thirty percent of pharmacology faculty have the M.D. degree compared to twenty-five percent in departments of anatomy. Even so, salaries among the basic science departments are fairly close, differences in the means rarely exceeding five percent within an academic rank.

As to SFT faculty in the clinical departments, a very significant spread exists within the same rank across the various departments. For example, the compensation mean for professors of thoracic and cardiovascular surgery is $74,900 versus a professor of community health compensated at $39,100 on average. These are statistics, however, for faculty without respect to degree held. Taking the same SFT examples cited above, but for faculty holding the M.D. degree, the respective averages are still quite disparate - $78,000 compared to $43,700.

During the 1977-78 Survey, a number of geographic full-time designations were found among the basic science faculty. There were 650 such cases; only 136 of these were holders of the M.D. degree. Both statistics are significantly higher than last year's 169, of which 55 held the M.D. degree. These data may reflect a liberalizing of medical practice plans where the income generated by clinical practitioners helps to strengthen basic science compensation levels. Also, it may show the effect of using the institution's own SFT/GFT designations rather than those defined by the AAMC.

Section II focuses on SFT and GFT salaries by region, but again for faculty without regard to degree held. The number of medical schools included in the study is as follows (the figure in parentheses represents the schools currently operational in that region): Northeast - 35(36), South - 30(36), Midwest-Great Plains - 28(31), West - 15(16). With respect to the basic science departments, comparison of salary by region shows that in general the highest mean compensation occurs in the West; the lowest in the Midwest-Great Plains. As to the SFT clinical departments, the high salary means are considerably mixed among all regions. In general, the SFT clinical chairmen's salaries are highest in the Northeast. When one considers GFT fully reported compensation, the highest clinical averages occur in the Midwest-Great Plains.

A review of compensation according to type of school ownership, and again for faculty without regard to degree held, appears in Section III. These tables reflect data for 63 public and 45 private institutions. With respect to the basic sciences, salary means are consistently higher in public schools at the lower ranks; for associate professors, professors and chairmen, private school averages are greater. Chairmen among the traditional basic science departments of private schools, for example, earn salaries three to eight percent above their public school counterparts. As with prior surveys, the data reaffirm that compensation levels for clinical faculty in private institutions generally exceed those for public schools. For the same rank in a given specialty, the spread between the averages of the public and private schools' faculty is frequently ten to twenty percent, and it is thirty percent or higher for some department chairmen and instructors. This is true for both the SFT and GFT designations.

For the second successive year, salaries are shown separately for faculty with the M.D. degree. These are reflected in Section IV of this Report. The SFT and GFT data are aggregated nationally. Section V shows national SFT and GFT compensation averages for those faculty with doctoral degrees other than the M.D. The salary contrast between these two degree-holding categories continues to be quite pronounced. In the traditional basic science departments, faculty (SFT and GFT) holding M.D. degrees are compensated generally ten to fifteen percent higher than those with other doctoral degrees. Within the clinical departments, however, much greater compensation differentials occur, especially for departments like psychiatry, otolaryngology and community health where non-M.D. faculty are numerous. This is illustrated by comparing the national average SFT salary for the rank of associate professor for the following departments:

	M.D. Degree	Other Doctoral Degree
Psychiatry	$45,900	$30,000
Community Health	42,200	29,400
Otolaryngology	53,400	29,400

Similarly, these variances prevail within the regions. However, they are the most extreme in the Midwest-Great Plains, where the differentials for a given rank in the same department can exceed 100 percent of the lower mean.

Section VI of the 1977-78 Faculty Salary Report comprises a selected set of tables reflecting only the base or guaranteed (fixed) salary component of GFT clinical faculty compensation. Matrices for faculty without regard to degree held and for those with the M.D. degree are included separately. It should be emphasized that these data represent all faculty for which a base is reported, even those who were disqualified as complete compensation reporters, i.e., where an "NI" was indicated for any of the earnings components. Therefore, caution should be used in interpreting the data in this section of the Report. There have been instances, for example, where full-time clinical faculty draw as much as ninety percent of their total compensation from the variable practice earnings, the institutional base being only a few thousand dollars for a full professor. To illustrate further, at one school, the Department of Medicine pays a base of $53,000 to one M.D. full professor who is expected to earn a supplement of $8,000; at the same institution in the same department, a second full professor is paid a base of $5,000 and anticipates practice earnings of $58,000. The rationale for these circumstances varies from school to school. Sometimes it is a reflection of the amount of effort an academic practitioner devotes to the school's teaching and research missions as opposed to private practice. Often it is related simply to the greater availability of practice-generated income.

Because of this year's changes in definition and in methodology for reporting and processing data, comparison of means from corresponding tables of last year's report may not give an accurate measure of annual increase. For example, some positions reported as GFT last year, using AAMC definitions, may have been reported as SFT this year, using the school's own designation.

Statistics describing the faculty population in the Report are summarized in Section VII by academic rank, category of employment, region and ownership of employing institution and degree held. The data are included on separate tables, first for faculty whose total compensation is reflected, and secondly for all faculty where a fixed component of salary (even those with partial compensation) has been reported.

From the tables reflecting total compensation, it is observed that 51 percent of the clinical faculty and 63 percent of the basic science faculty are at the senior level (chairman, full professor, associate professor), usually regarded as tenure ranks. Respectively, 60 percent and 73 percent of the compensation dollars are paid to full-time faculty at that level. As to degree held, 13 percent of the basic science faculty in contrast to 78 percent of the clinical department faculty have the M.D. degree. The respective allocation of salary dollars is 17 percent of basic science salaries and 87 percent of clinical science salaries paid to faculty members with the M.D. degree. With respect to geographical distribution of total faculty, the largest percentage is in the Northeast - 31 percent; the smallest is in the West - 14 percent. Compensation is similarly apportioned. Fifty-two percent of the faculty for which total compensation is reported are at public institutions.

Although the same statistical attributes mentioned above are included in a table for faculty whose only compensation is the fixed component, no striking phenomena are noted.

The final section in this report includes a set of matrices showing selected data on salaries using the strict AAMC definitions of SFT and GFT, instead of the schools' designations. Faculty members were regarded as SFT if a base salary was reported, with DNA (Does Not Apply) for all other components. Faculty members were regarded as GFT if zero or a positive number was reported for any component other than base. As in other total compensation tables, faculty with NI (No Information) reported for any component were excluded altogether except for SFT basic science faculty noted above. The data displayed are for M.D. faculty in the individual basic science and clinical departments. As one compares these data with the comparable information on pages 48-53 in this Report, very minor differences are seen in the means. In general, the SFT averages in the clinical departments are lower by four percent or less in the senior ranks, using the AAMC imposed definitions. The GFT means tend to run slightly lower, especially at the junior levels, with AAMC defined SFT and GFT.

REPORT ON MEDICAL SCHOOL FACULTY SALARIES, 1977-78

AAMC Definitions

SFT

A. Strict full-time medical school faculty are those who receive their entire professional income as a fixed annual amount from funds controlled by the medical school or its parent institution, who devote their full time to the programs of the medical school, and whose professional activities are under the direct auspices of the medical school.

GFT

B. Geographic full-time medical school faculty are those who receive a fixed salary all or most of which is paid from funds controlled by the medical school, but who may earn variable income from professional activities, who conduct all of their professional work in the institution(s) paying the fixed salary, and whose professional activities are under the direct auspices of the medical school.

COMPONENTS OF COMPENSATION

Base or Guaranteed Component - That salary amount which is fixed, usually annually, by the institution, is exclusive of fringe benefits, and is normally not influenced by practice earnings.

Expected/Non-Guaranteed Component - That element of compensation from an institutionally controlled source, but one which is influenced by practice earnings.

Bonus/Incentive Earnings - This component is often highly variable and is generally estimated; it could derive from any one or all of the following:

- Year-end bonus from a faculty practice plan
- Incentive earnings and averages according to the practice plan
- Outside earnings where limited or controlled by the institution.

Uncontrolled Outside Earnings - Known but unregulated outside professional income.

NOTE: All nature of employment designations and compensation data will be treated as CONFIDENTIAL according to AAMC policy.

*For Salary Survey purposes, M.D. represents M.D., D.M.D.,D.D.S., D.O., or D.P.H. Other Doctoral represents any doctoral degree other than those above. Non-Doctoral represents any degree other than doctoral, or no degree.

Explanation: The "Base or Guaranteed Component" is provided for each faculty member. All of the faculty holding M.D. degrees are participants in the practice plan and are drawing some compensation from this source. For four of the M.D.'s, however, there are "Uncontrolled Outside Earnings" which the school cannot estimate but knows exist. Thus an "NI" (No Information) has been recorded. These are regarded as incomplete compensation reporters. The chairman, who is an M.D., has revealed total compensation - a "Base", an "Expected/Non-Guaranteed" amount, and the sum from "Outside Earnings". The two faculty members who are non-M.D. receive a year-end bonus generated from the practice of others in the department. For these two individuals "Expected/Non-Guaranteed Component" and "Uncontrolled Outside Earnings" are inappropriate terms and recorded as "DNA" (Does Not Apply).
